

GARFIELD DISBARS SIX CITY LAWYERS

Pension Attorneys Are Accused of Violations.

AFFECTS 100,000 APPLICANTS

These Included Persons in All Parts of United States, and It May Be Necessary for Them to Renew Applications—Secretary Alleges Attorneys Have Been Selling Warrants.

As the result of the recent disbarment from practice before the Department of the Interior by Secretary Garfield of six pension and patent attorneys, more than 100,000 applications for pensions and patents, made by persons in different parts of the United States, have been indefinitely held up, and it may be necessary for the parties to renew their applications.

On the ground that they were trafficking with their clients in bounty land claims, Secretary Garfield barred from practice before the Pension Bureau, the Patent Office, and the General Land Office the firm of Milo B. Stevens & Co., Edgar T. Gaddis, Thomas R. Harney, Harvey Spalding, James H. Spalding, and Edward W. Spalding, all of Washington.

Military Bounty Lands.

Under the act of March 3, 1855, military bounty lands are allowed to certain pensioners and their heirs. Secretary Garfield charges that the attorneys named would prosecute claims for these bounty lands on behalf of the pensioner or his heir or heirs, and when the warrant was issued would open up negotiations to buy the warrant at a reduced price, and sell it to them at a large profit. He assumed that this is not in the interest of the persons whom the law intended should receive the warrants, and was inconsistent with the duties which the attorneys set out to perform for the clients.

Following the order disbarring the attorneys, Secretary Garfield declined to allow them to transfer their cases to other attorneys, and it was then disclosed that the attorneys disbarred had an enormous number of pension, patent, and land cases pending, the firm of Milo B. Stevens & Co. alone having in excess of 45,000. The attorneys have instituted mandamus proceedings to compel the Secretary to reinstate them, and have engaged nine of Washington's leading lawyers to represent them in the proceedings.

Position of the Secretary.

An official of the department yesterday said that Secretary Garfield had taken the position that, as he is charged with the duty of administering the laws, he must see that they are administered for the benefit of the pensioners alone. To a certain extent, he believes, the government is a trustee for the pensioners. The act of 1855, the official also said, gives the Secretary the right to admit attorneys to practice before the Interior Department, and in the qualifications for admission established the Secretary has the right to provide for the protection of pensioners.

MUSIC HIS RECREATION.

A. Lisner Spends His Leisure Hours Playing Chopin.

It is not often that the administrative and executive ability necessary to build up a great financial enterprise is coupled with a love of the beautiful in art and music. But an instance is that of Mr. A. Lisner, of this city, whose delight and recreation is music, and who spends his leisure hours playing from Chopin and other great composers.

At a musicale on Monday afternoon last Mr. Lisner delighted his hearers with selections from Kullack, Beethoven, Chopin, and Mendelssohn, playing with wonderful execution and depth of feeling, among other difficult selections, the capriccio from Mendelssohn, in which Josef Hoffman won his popularity. Mr. Lisner's musical education was completed in New York City, and he has a wonderful memory, and plays all of his selections, including the thirty-piece sonata, without notes.

TRIBUTE TO PHILIP F. GERRY

Memorial Meeting Held by Friends in the Public Library.

Addresses Made by Dr. Day, Mr. Kaufmann, Mrs. Oldberg, Justice Stafford, and Others.

A memorial to the late Philip F. Gerry, teacher, lecturer, poet, musician, and newspaper man, was held last night in the Public Library building at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. T. Wayland Vaughan, vice president of the Gerry Memorial Association, presided in place of the president, Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston. A large number of Mr. Gerry's friends attended. The programme consisted of a series of addresses in eulogy of Mr. Gerry by well-known public men and women. It was so arranged that the speakers started with Gerry, the boy, and brought the audience with them through his life in all its phases.

Dr. David T. Day spoke on "Philip F. Gerry, the boy," telling how in his early years he displayed artistic and literary ability. Mr. Allan Davis, who followed, told of Gerry's successful career as a teacher in the high schools of this city.

He spoke of him as a man of wonderful adaptability.

Miss Emma Gillett, president of the Winodaus Club, spoke of Mr. Gerry, the lecturer, who sought to see justice done to womanhood. As a newspaper man, said Mr. Rudolph Kaufmann, of the Evening Star, his career was unique. He had been for many years a teacher, imparting knowledge to others.

A musician he was, too, said Mrs. Suzanne Oldberg, who had been the trainer of the deep, rich bass voice he possessed.

Mr. Glenn Brown told of his efforts in the cause of making Washington the city beautiful, and his connection with literary efforts was described by Dr. W. H. Hall.

A fitting tribute was paid by Mr. Justice Wendell P. Stafford, of the Supreme Court. He said:

"The value of the man is the value of the objects on which his heart is set. The value of such a man as Philip Gerry, a man many-sided and of high purposes, is evident. He gave himself unreservedly to his friends."

A letter was read from Edward Everett Hale, expressing his regret at being obliged to be absent and paying high tribute to his friend.

An appeal for subscriptions to the memorial fund with which it is proposed to install in the library a gentleman's library corner, in memorial to Gerry was made by Dr. Day.

HYPNOTIZED AND BURIED.

Young Man Interred at Luna Park Before Thousands.

With 4,000 persons as witnesses a young man named McCrae was buried alive at Luna Park last night. His body will be left under the ground ten days. When taken out it is supposed he will be alive and healthy, and will have suffered no ill effects from his interment.

Prof. Bunha Kuppurov, a man of mystery from India, buried McCrae while the latter was hypnotized in full view of thousands of persons gathered to witness the strange feat. He was placed in a box six feet long and three feet wide. The box was put in a long narrow ditch, opening from the surface of the ground to the box, made it possible for any one doubting the claim that McCrae was in the box to see his face through a glass window in the top of the coffin and over his head.

COMMITTEES ARE INCOMPETENT

Member of House District Body and Apostle of Universal Transfers Declares that Seat of Government Is the Dog on Which Congress Tries Laws that Are New.

In an address before the Citizens' North-west Suburban Association, at Tennyson last night, Representative Thelus W. Sims, of Tennessee, a member of the House District Committee, said that the District of Columbia is a national experimental station for the working out of doubtful laws, which some other sections want, if they are good laws, but do not want until they are tested; wherefore they demand that their Representatives in Congress have them tried out on the people of the District.

Mr. Sims also said that while the people of the District get but a small number of the laws which they needed, they get a great many that they do not need or want.

In opening his address, Mr. Sims declared that members of the House and Senate District Committees could get much benefit out of attending the meetings of the different citizens' associations. He said, in part:

"Members of Congress on the District Committees, in order to know better the needs of the people of the District, should attend the meetings of the various citizens' associations. I have got ideas from those I have attended."

Wants People to Protest.

"The associations could do no more than protest against the government in District affairs, and this is so in the case of the widening of Albemarle street, out here in this section."

Representative Sims spoke of the grading in the suburbs, and said that he did not see why streets were cut through hills, which nature had given the people, in order to make a street straight. He thought that the streets could encircle those hills and not cause any inconvenience.

He spoke of the difference between the people of the District and the people of the States asking Congress for something. He said that in the States the people demand certain legislation and in the District the people request it. This, he said, was due to the lack of franchise.

"I believe that the majority of Congressmen have a respectful consideration for your requests," he added, "and I know they have a wholesome respect for the demands of their constituents, and will always fear what they may say before and after legislation. Now, to get this right, you should have a franchise or interest in the government."
